

Sheila Hill is a seasoned Supply Chain leader with more than 35 years of transportation and logistics expertise spanning domestic and export operations, private fleet management, accessorial oversight, and exception management—including Loss Prevention and Freight Claims. She holds a Bachelor of Science in Business from Old Dominion University in Norfolk, VA.

Driven by a passion for operational excellence, Sheila specializes in identifying process gaps, designing practical solutions, and managing complex exceptions to deliver optimal business results.

She currently serves as Senior Manager of Freight Settlement & Loss Prevention at Smithfield Foods, where she leads multiple Supply Chain teams and partners cross-functionally with stakeholders across the organization. Over the past two decades, Sheila has developed deep expertise in carrier claims management—skillfully mitigating risk, controlling financial exposure, and consistently securing favorable claim outcomes.

Her extensive industry tenure, strategic insight, and collaborative leadership style enable her to make informed decisions, strengthen carrier and internal partnerships, and implement innovative solutions that advance organizational success.
